

Editor's Foreword

It is with great pleasure that I introduce our inaugural issue of International Corporate Rescue. There is no doubt that the subject of corporate rescue and insolvency is extremely relevant right now in business and for the advisors involved across the globe. It is our intention in this new bi-monthly journal to provide practitioner value on a range of corporate rescue and insolvency issues covering a multitude of jurisdictions.

I am privileged to be able to work with an outstanding Editorial Board, including renowned experts in this field from all over the world. The Editorial Board is drawn from academia, the legal and accountancy professions and from banking and commerce. It is with thanks to them that the concept and content of the journal has been developed. I would also like to thank the Publishers at Kluwer Law International and Sian O'Neill and Sasha Radoja in particular, for their support from the start in bringing this new journal together.

These are changing and challenging times. I for one am extremely excited to be involved with a journal with global reach which is broad enough to cover industry perspectives and factors influencing global economic change and yet specialised enough to provide an in-depth analysis to practitioners facing these issues on a day-to-day basis. We hope that you will find this journal to be not only relevant to your practice but also a useful guide to the myriad of complex legal and commercial issues which arise in this area. Feedback and comments are very welcome and the members of the Editorial Board and I would be interested to hear of any matters you might like to see featured in future editions.
